This Saturday is a Big Day

Attention! All Pre-K (boys who turned 4 by August 1st) and Kindergarten boys...this is your day! The kickoff day for soccer is this Saturday, September 28 at 11:00 at all three locations. Make sure to invite a friend and come ready to practice. All boys who come on opening day will receive a t-shirt, so you won't want to miss it.

The Story of an Unsung 9/11 Hero by Michael Daly – Sept. 11, 2013

At midnight every September 11, Elsie Clark hangs a banner on the fence alongside the front-yard memorial to the 39-year-old son who perished at the World Trade Center.

In Loving Memory
Benjamin Keefe Clark
9/11/01

Benjamin Clark remained in the South Tower of the World Trade Center helping countless people to safety. The son was not a firefighter or a police officer...he was a chef. But a morning that began with him preparing meals for the people at the Fiduciary Trust Company suddenly led to him becoming as brave as any first responder. A Fiduciary official would later credit Clark with saving hundreds of lives as he made sure that everyone in his department, along with everybody else in the company's 96th floor offices in the South Tower, was safely exiting the building.

He then paused on the 78th floor to assist a woman in a wheelchair. "He could have gotten out," his mother says. "Everybody else did."

The mother would ascribe some of his courage to him having been a Marine for eight years. "My son was a Marine, so you know he wasn't going to leave anybody behind," she says. More than a Marine, he was Benjamin Clark, since his earliest years ever ready to lend a hand to whoever might need it. He had only to see a neighbor in need of assistance big or small and he would exclaim, "I'll help! I'll help!" "He was always there to help," his mother says.

Upon seeing others suddenly in the most mortal danger, his everyday decency had become uncommon courage. A chef known for his fabulous meatloaf, and for remembering everybody's name and favorite meals had proven as courageous as if he had stepped off an FDNY rig.

Something for us all to remember as we travel through our everyday life. Courage is not forged in a day, but over a lifetime of practice.

Kare Youth League Handbook

In this week's installment of the Kare Youth League Family Handbook we include attendance requirements (not all requirements included).

We ask that members call and leave messages for their coaches whenever they are going to miss an activity.

It is important to note that players may only miss two games to be eligible for an award and players must be eligible for an award to participate in championship games. There may be special exceptions for extended illness.

A great advantage of our program is that children can play together on the same team and with the same leader from sport to sport. This is the best way to experience the many benefits Kare offers. Therefore, we limit the number of times that a member can leave and then re-register to only once beginning at third grade.
