Saturday Night Action!

The Heels battled the Bulldogs in an epic Saturday evening game. The Heels combined for over 15 tackles and 70 yards on the day. Nicholas Ulloa spearheaded the defensive attack with 7 amazing tackles. "Where did that boy come from," exclaimed the Bulldogs head coach, Jim Hanna. Shane Irwin, Rainn Pollock and Ethan Valenzuela also were instrumental in the Heels defensive campaign with 3 solo tackles each.

The Heels struggled to move the ball down field against the Bulldogs defensive wall. Ulloa picked up a couple yards on his first run, along with Rainn Pollock and Noah Walter each with a yard. Matthew Armas charged ahead close to 6 yards, but fell just inches shy of the first down marker.

The B-Dogs took control of the ball, but were hit hard by Ulloa, Rainn and Valenzuela on first down. They managed to pick up a first down, but Linebacker, Pollock, forced them back for a loss. The Dogs found daylight around the end on their next play, but Valenzuela came up with a HUGE hit on the 1 inch line. Eventually Georgia punched it through the Tar Heel line, completing their extra point to jump ahead 7-0.

The Heels came right back though as John Shahine charged 7 yards down the middle of the field. Michael Bowers doubled that effort picking up 14 yards on his carry for the first down. Shane Irwin picked up 2, Pollock had 4, Walter grabbed 2 yards and Matthew Armas tried to punch it into the endzone on 4th and about 3. But he was hit by a swarm of dogs and the half would end with a score of 7-0 in favor of Georgia.

Georgia capitalized on their momentum, starting the half with a huge 18 yard kickoff return up the middle. Raymond Ortega, Nicholas Ulloa, Michael Bowers and Rainn Pollock combined for the stop. Ulloa continued to deny the Bulldogs with another 2 huge open field tackles. Georgia eventually ran away from Ulloa and into the endzone.

The Heels were down 14-0, but were not giving up yet! Walter picked up a 3 yarder, followed by Irwin with 2. Bowers was hit hard but still managed to get 4 yards. With 4th down and about 12 yards out, the Heels looked to Ethan Valenzuela to bring them home. Valenzuela hit the line hard, breaking 3 tackles along the way, but was eventually dropped on about the 4 yard line. His run was good enough for the first down though as Seth Contreras grabbed the ball ran for 2 on his first big carry of the season. The Heels only had time for one more play. Armas delivered the ball into the hands of Ulloa on a reverse, but fell just short of the goal line. What a great game boys! The Tar Heels will take next Saturday off to rest after this amazing game!
