Star Wars Meets Football on Friday Night

A Rio Hondo Prep Homecoming is always just a little different and this Friday, October 30th will be no exception. Make sure to bring your light saber and, "May the force be with you." The girls from Kare Youth League will be performing and the Rio Hondo Prep Homecoming Queen and her Court will be crowned. The football game will also be important for the Kares as they try to secure a playoff spot with a victory over always tough Flintridge Prep. Plan to come out and support the young men and women who help with your child's team on this huge night.

Here's a picture from RHP Homecoming 2013 of princesses Anya West and McKenzie Martin. This year's event is going to be "out of this world".

Future Bowl on a New Night

The Future Bowl is Kare's version of an all-star game as boys from Arcadia, Covina, and Upland all come to compete on the gridiron to see which facility is best. Most of the divisions will pit Arcadia and Upland against the boys from Covina. This year the event will fall on the night before Veterans' Day, Tuesday, November 10. All the games will be played in Arcadia and there will also be a Pac Five A Division volleyball tournament and a performance from the Royal Friends. You won't want to miss it.

A Division	4:15	Field #3
B Division	5:00	Field #1b
AAA Division	5:00	Field #1
Pac Five A	5:00	Stivers (Volleyball Tournament)
Royal Friends	6:00	Arrive for practice and performance
C Division	6:30	Field #1b
AA Division	6:30	Field #1
Pac 12	8:00	Field #1

A Plan for Your Child's Faith Part 2

(From Sticky Faith by Kara Powell and Chap Clark)

(From last week) As a parent or grandparent, what can you do to help teenagers have faith that lasts? (2 ideas were mentioned last week; the following are the last 3 ideas).

3. Connect their sons and daughters to at least five caring adults. Kids need to develop a strong personal identity for faith to stick and community helps do just that. When kids know specific adults who are "on their team," they have a web of support to catch them when they fall and keep them connected to faith for the long haul. Using the scaffolding of existing relationships with extended family, neighbors, friends, coaches and teachers, builds a 5:1 sticky web adult to child ratio for mentoring your kids. Other adults are often able to speak to them in ways you cannot as the parent.

4. Reinforce that their faith is bigger than any moral failure or mistake. The students in the Sticky Faith study tended to view their faith as a list of behaviors, akin to what Dallas Willard calls the "gospel of sin management." Tragically, when students with that view of their faith fail, their feelings of guilt cause them to run from their faith and the church, just when they need them the most. A faith that sticks is one that is based not primarily on behaviors, but on inner life change.

5. Talk to high school juniors and seniors now about life after college. Only one in seven youth group graduates felt their faith was ready for what they faced after high school. As part of practical discussions on issues such as managing money and time, help high school upperclassmen plan a schedule that will include church attendance. 40 percent of college freshmen report difficulty finding a church, so help them make the connection before arrival for a smoother and stickier transition.

It's never too early to start building Sticky Faith in your kids.
