Who Knew that Pandas like Roses?

The SoccerFest has food trucks coming like Tommy's Burgers and the Deli Doctor. Now they are being joined by Panda Express. We are still working on a taco truck as well. If you know someone that owns one, let us know and we'll see what we can do.

God's Little Devotional Book

By John G. Nicolay and John Hay

A crude little lifesaving station once stood on a dangerous seacoast known for shipwrecks. The station was only a hut with one small boat, but volunteers tirelessly kept their watch over the churning seas. Some of those they rescued and others who admired their work began to volunteer. New boats were purchased. New crews were trained. Some of the members raised funds to build a bigger station with newer equipment and better lifesaving systems.

Over time, the station began to be less of a lifesaving station and more of a yacht club, with only a few members actually involved in patrolling the seas and rescuing those in danger. Eventually, so few members of the station were interested in the life-saving missions, they hired professional lifeboat crews to do it, but only when storms arose.

About that time a large ship experienced an explosion in its engine room and began to take on water. Its S O S signal went unnoticed in the lifesaving station – the regular members were too busy with other matters. The ship was already sinking by the time a lifeboat was launched. Many people died.

Would you hear an S O S call today, or are you just a member of a yacht club?

Do you need to take a life inventory to see if you are staying on task? Read the story above to help remind you of what's important in life.
