TAR HEELS LOSE BY 4 INCHES

Last Saturday's game was one for the books! It was a game of fierce competition, powerful blocking and intense kicking. Our boys battled the Bulldogs in a game that came down to just four inches. The Bulldogs opened up the game with a huge offensive campaign. Nose guard Jacob Ayala crashed into the backfield downing the QB on two big plays picking up a total of four tackles on the day. Shaun Lewis once again commanded the middle with 4 huge tackles, complimented by Lucas Walter and Matthew Guerrero who added 3 tackles a piece. Cole Armas, Erick Rosales and Mehki Austin defended the ball well with 2 tackles, followed by Max Alvarado and Caleb Cantu each with one. Eventually though, the Bulldogs picked up a first down and continued their march into the endzone on a sweep around our left side. They lined up for the extra point and kicked it through the uprights giving them an 8-0 lead. The Bulldogs had just found the Tar Heel's achilles "Heel" - Field Goal Kicking!

The Heels quickly took possession of the ball and began their march down the field. But unlike previous games, the Heels were hit by a swarm of red jerseys.

The Bulldogs kept our runners to single digit runs, and the Tar Heel blocking brigade had a hard time keeping them out. Shaun Lewis and Max Alvarado managed to pick up 5 yard gains, followed by Matthew Guerrero and Lucas Walter with 3 yards. Caleb Cantu and Benn Bass tried to sneak through the line but couldn't crack the defensive wall. Eventually, Erick Rosales managed to part the red sea of Bulldogs and squeeze his way into the endzone! The Heels called for Ayala to punch it over the goal post on the PAT. Lucas Walter held the ball beautifully on the tee as Ayala's foot made contact with the ball. The football soared into the air but that four inch goal post had other plans for the ball and decided to get in the way. A great kick was defeated by a four inch pole. The Tar Heels tried to rally back, but the Bulldogs were able to pick up a first down on their next drive securing the ball game and giving the Heels their first loss of the season. We'll get them next time boys!

Please remember we need everyone at the games 15 minutes early so we are ready to play! The Heels will take a week off this Saturday to regroup and plan their strategy for their next football showcase. We will see you at practice next Thursday!
