3-2-1 Drawing Update

Last week we announced the winners of the 3-2-1 ticket drawing: 3rd place went to Jose Corden, 2nd place to David Torrez, and 1st place to Matt Bell. The 2nd place prize has not been claimed yet. If it is not claimed by the end of the month we will have to award the prize to our "backup" drawing winner.

Please double check the winners to see if you know the person who won the second place prize.

COLUMN ONE

Trunk or Treat

There is going to be a special church service at our Kare Youth League church in Alta Loma (5719 Beryl St.) on Sunday, October 30 at 5:00. After the service we will be celebrating our 3rd anniversary with a “Trunk or Treat” spectacular. Children can come in costume and there will be lots of candy, hot dogs, a bouncer, and other fun activities. Please stop by.

Here is a spooky shot from last year's Trunk or Treat of some Pac Five Cougars. You can be a part of the fun this year on Sunday, October 30 starting at 5:00 in Alta Loma.

Say, “Cheeeeeeeese!”

The month of October (and the first week in November) is “Team Picture Month” at Kare Youth League. Picture packages are $20 and need to be paid for before the photographer can take the shot. Below is the schedule for the next couple of weeks:

Saturday, October 29 – All Upland boys teams (except Oregon) and the Upland Royal Friends.

Saturday, November 5 – C Division – UNC, B Division – FSU, A Division – UNC & Georgia, AAA Division – UNC & Georgia.

Going to the Playoffs

The playoffs are coming up on Saturday, November 12. In most divisions the top four teams make the post season. Go to www.kyl.org, click on “Links”, and then “Team Standings” to see if your team has a chance.

Failure is an Option by Aviva Patz (excerpt from Parent Magazine) Part 5

BE A GOOD ROLE MODEL

Your child watches you like a hawk, so it's important to handle your own disappointments with grace. If you panic every time you misplace your cell phone or curse when you stain a shirt, you're not demonstrating healthy coping skills. When Debby Clarke, of Colorado Springs, didn't receive a medal for finishing a 10K road race, her daughters -- who get trophies just for participating on sports teams -- expected her to be let down. "I told them I felt great because I ran my best and had fun, and that's what matters most," Clarke says.

Use phrases that will help your child cope with his own shortcomings, such as, "I'll try harder next time" or "I've done it once; I can do it again." And take responsibility when you goof ("I'm sorry I forgot to bring your bathing suit.") This shows that adults make mistakes too -- and own up to them.

MANAGE EXPECTATIONS

Kids fail tests, strike out, and forget their lines. Picnics get canceled when it rains. Stores run out of popular dolls. You can't prevent these things from happening, but you can reduce your child's distress by keeping her anticipation within reason. Stacey Cermak, of Montclair, New Jersey, discovered this when her 5-year-old daughter, Eliska, had her first sleepover. They spent the whole week looking through cookie recipes to decide what to bake, selecting toys, and arranging mattresses. When the friend backed out at the last minute, Eliska fell apart. "I realized how much I had fed into her expectations," says Cermak.

Rather than talking about exciting plans as guarantees, treat them as mere possibilities. Then if things don't work out in the end, you've cushioned the blow -- and reinforced the lesson that minor disappointments are a part of life.
