INTERLEAGUER

VOLUME 76, NUMBER 27 • MARCH 27, 2017

COLUMN ONE

The Covina and Arcadia Karenas held their awards a couple of weeks ago. Looks like they hopped in the hot rod, split the party, and are gonna burn some rubber heading back to their pad.

The Perfect Fit

Nothing goes together better at Kare Youth League than basketball and the Bible. Sunday, April 2 from 10:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. the two will meet when children come to Kare Youth Church in Arcadia to participate in a Bible Basketball Tournament. There will be refreshments, fun, and trophies for the winning teams. Let your child's leader know that you want to be part of the action.

Original Tommy's Burgers Coming Back

For the second year in a row Original Tommy's Burgers is coming to the Rose Bowl for SoccerFest 2017. You can almost taste the chili now. Sell $250 worth of SoccerFest tickets and win $20 in "Foodie Vouchers" that you can spend at Tommy's or one of the other food trucks that will be at the event. The tickets come out the weekend of April 1st (no fooling).

Message in a Bottle: Part One

Edited from Chicken Soup for the Soul

I truly believe everyone in their lifetime comes face-to-face with a miracle. It's the kind of miracle that reminds you of one single word that can be easily forgotten...hope.

One blustery day as I walked along the shoreline, I watched waves roll in from a spate of thunderstorms. Trash lined the shore, along with large mounds of seaweed. I don't know what made it catch my eye, but atop those smelly mounds, a large bottle was perched upright. Inside, I spotted a piece of paper...a damp slip curled with lettering on it. I clutched the bottle under my arm and got the message out. It said: Return to E.L. Cannon, Hollywood, Florida, with a note and your address and receive $20 US.

I wrote to E.L. Cannon and learned that he and his wife had tossed the bottle from a cruise ship about 100 miles off Los Angeles after coming up from the Panama Canal. Soon my husband, Jim and I became pen pals with Ed and Mary, who turned out to be delightful, retired world travelers. To this day, although they are in their 80s, I still have images of them dancing across the ship's deck.

We began exchanging short letters. During this time, I read a magazine article and grew intrigued by the country of Belize. I dreamed about its lush tropical jungles, its jaguars, its hundreds of palm-lined cays-islands-peppered inside the second longest barrier reef in the world. I liked that some of the country's descendants had come from a line of British and Scottish pirates, who once hid among the cays that laced the aqua-green Caribbean. I shared my dream with Jim, and we decided to go the next year. We collected information and saved money. On a lark, I wrote the Cannons and asked if they'd been there.

In response, a huge envelope arrived and out fell a pile of photos of Mary and Ed in Belize. The Cannons had been visiting there for more than two decades. They said it would be the perfect place to meet. (continued next week...)
