Making Failure Work for You

From “Uncommon Life” by Tony Dungy

Part of what set Michael Jordan apart was his philosophy about being willing to take a risk. As Jordan said:

I’ve missed more than 9,000 shots in my career. I’ve lost almost 300 games. 26 times I’ve been trusted to take the game-winning shot and missed. I’ve failed over and over and over again in my life. And that is why I succeed.

Babe Ruth struck out almost twice the number of times that he hit a home run, yet he is still considered one of the greats. Abraham Lincoln lost almost every political race he entered, until he was finally elected president of the United States.

We’ll fall short. We’ll fall down. We’ll fail. That’s one piece of life advice that we seem to forget to tell young people. So often they are confronted with failure in ways that they didn’t expect.

You could tell them the story of Thomas Edison, who went through thousands of experiments before inventing the light bulb. You’d think that Edison must have felt like quitting, giving up on the idea altogether. Instead, he pulled himself out of whatever discouragement that seemed rightly his and pressed on.

When things happen to us that aren’t exactly what we had hoped for, there are a number of ways we can respond. But there’s only one response that will help us to move on toward the promise of a new day full of opportunities.

Get over it, get up, and try it again.

Olympian Eric Liddell once said, “In the dust of defeat as well as the laurels of victory there is a glory to be found if one has done his best.”

Get over it, get up, and try it again.
